MIRACLE 'JESUS' PICTURES TO APPEAR ON eBay

Prof and classroom witnesses 'miracle pictures' from printer

Honolulu, Hawaii (API) -- The students and professor at Hawaii Pacific University were not believers until a holy high-tech miracle occurred in their classroom: 10 images of Jesus mysteriously appeared from a broken, unplugged computer printer.

Professor LG Williams suddenly put down his grilled cheese sandwich, stood up and "Praised The Lord!" when 10 pictures of Jesus miraculously shot out of his classroom's broken, unplugged Epson DFX-8500 laser printer last Tuesday afternoon.

LG Williams, a visiting professor at Hawaii Pacific University, insisted this was not a random incident or prank.

"For once and for all, this proves the power of The Lord!" Williams, a self-described recovering nihilist, said Tuesday, only hours after the miracle occurred.

"God created Jesus; and Jesus, in turn, helped man invent Silicon Valley. And dude, everyone knows that computers are high-tech. Like here we have the first instance in history that proves God knows about everything, even high-tech gadgets like Epson computer printers, cause he himself printed 10 pictures of his son, The Holy Jesus, from this broken, unplugged computer – it's printer cartridge wasn't even installed! Heck, Bill Gates couldn't do that...only The Lord could do that!", Williams said.

"After looking at the photos a second time," he said. "I knew this was the first high-tech miracle sent from above."

Williams thought eBay would be the best place to auction off the images, made on plain printer paper. "Sure, now I wish I had used better, archival paper, but I'm not complaining. No sir. Who complains to The Lord? My name is not 'Job', is it? No sir, its LG Williams."

Williams, 32, said he was standing by the printer and saw 10 faces staring back at him from below. He quickly looked above, said a prayer, made the sign of the cross across his chest, and put the images in a clear plastic sleeve and placed them in his gym bag.

At first, he was scared by the images, "The power of The Lord is frightening, but now that I realize how unique they are, I want to share them with the world," Williams said.

The images, he added, will lead millions back to Christ. Indeed, each one of the holy witnesses to the event vowed to work together as "The 12 Neo-Apostles" once they graduate and get real jobs.
